The 1892 Old Fashion-ed: Wild Turkey 81 Bourbon, Orange Curacao & Bitters Inspired by the birth year of Vogue, we've taken the most classic of cocktails, The Old Fashioned. The original recipe was first documented the same decade Vogue came out, to this day they both remain unwaveringly classic. 1988: Back in Black: Absolut Vodka, Espresso, Coconut & Chocolate According to legend, the infamous London bartender Dick Bradsell created the Espresso Martini after a waiflike supermodel asked him for "Something to pick me up and * me up", and so the booze and caffeine hybrid was born. 2014: The Trend Setter: Beefeater Gin, Aperol, Kamm & Sons, Champagne Whoever said originality was dead never tried our take on the Negroni Sbagliato. Like most trends in 2014 this is a new and improved version of bygone favourite using the ever popular Aperol with London's own Kamm & Sons Ginseng spirit. They have also created a dessert that exudes sophistication and the quintessence of 'Britishness'. Champagne and Strawberry Jelly served with clotted cream, ice cream and strawberry coulis.
